

Case Study

Bird and Bird

New reception, meeting space and conference suite | April 2007
Value: £3 million

Introduction

The leading international law firm Bird and Bird needed to create a new meeting and conference suite to provide a modern, impressive venue for client meetings and entertainment. It also wanted to enhance facilities to encourage partners to utilise their office facilities and have an office that supported the brand's status as a leading company in its industry.

Details

Interiors used its office design brand Kanvas to work with Bird and Bird on translating their aspirations from conceptual thinking into a design that could be made real. This included a state of the art suite providing both visitors and partners with a multi functional meeting environment.

The 350 capacity conference suite also opened up what Bird and Bird could provide clients and guests, while better catering facilities, flexible technology, a Fee Earners' floor and visually impressive reception areas gave the office a new, modern look and feel.

Successes

The new offices improved the visitor experience and reinforced the Bird and Bird brand. This feedback from staff and clients led to a further project to design and refurbish Bird and Bird's 'back of house' office space.
